

KDCHC Privacy Policy – Summary for Clients

The Kitchener Downtown Community Health Centre is committed to the privacy of the information we collect from you. We need to collect personal information from you in order to support you, provide services here at the Centre and as appropriate, in the community.

KDCHC has a Client Privacy policy that outlines in detail how we collect and use your personal information. We will tell you why we are collecting the information and what we are using it to do. We also have many other policies that are designed to protect the information you give to us. All staff, students and volunteers sign a confidentiality agreement. Our staff will only see and use information that is required for them to do their job.

We use the information you give us to:

- Provide service and support both at KDCHC and with services in the community. This includes working together with others outside KDCHC to support your needs and your care (again when that is appropriate)
- Ensure that we are providing quality service, including quality improvement work and Accreditation requirements
- Report data to funders such as the Ministry of Health and Long- Term Care, the Waterloo Wellington Local Health Integration Network and to other partners that we work with in the community and the province.

You can ask for a copy of our Privacy policy from any staff member or find it on our website www.kdchc.org.

All inquiries related to how KDCHC contributes or obtains personal health information through provincial systems can be directed to the Privacy Officer or eHealth Ontario at the address below.

Should you have a question about your information or believe that there has been a breach of privacy related to your information, you can contact the Privacy Officer (Director of Community Programs and Engagement) at extension 212.
